MARK YOUNG At RT (1976-)

A draughtsman, painter, printmaker and sculptor working near Cardiff on the South Wales coast. He trained as a draughtsman and, in parallel to a successful career as a designer and technical illustrator, and developed his artistic practice, challenging the traditional approach to portraiture. Since 2016, he has had solo shows in Gloucestershire and was awarded the first prize in Galeri Caerffili's Open Art competition. He participated in exhibitions in London, like ING Discovering Eye and Flux exhibition. In 2017 he published his first book displaying a selection of drawings, prints, paintings and sculptures.

"I consider my work to be an exploration of the possibilities of the artistic portrait. I hesitate to call myself a portrait painter since I'm rarely concerned with the appearance of a particular individual, rather, I'm interested in what paint and clay can show us about being human. I often describe my ideas in terms of a path with many branches to be investigated. A branch may lead to a new discovery in technique or imagery that can be applied to my ongoing Fragments series, or it may lead to a distinct body of work such as the recently completed Cast series now At RT."
